

Political Unrest in Tanzania and Tumaini Foundation's Humanitarian Response

On 29th October 2025, Tanzania experienced a tragic episode of political unrest that erupted during the post-election period. What began as peaceful demonstrations over election results quickly escalated into violent confrontations between protestors and security forces across several regions. Unfortunately, thousands of Tanzanians were affected, with many reportedly shot or injured, and numerous families torn apart by the chaos.

Among the most heartbreaking consequences was the plight of children who lost one or both parents during the unrest. Many were left stranded—without care, food, or shelter—as their single mothers or fathers were either killed, injured, or went missing in the violence.

Recognizing the urgent humanitarian need, Tumaini Foundation took immediate action to rescue and protect these vulnerable children. The foundation mobilized its team and local partners to:

- 1. Identify and rescue children who were left unattended in affected communities.
- 2. Provide emergency shelter, food, and medical support to those in crisis.
- 3. Offer psychosocial and emotional care, especially for children traumatized by the loss of their parents.
- 4. Reunite children with surviving relatives where possible and integrate those without family support into Tumaini Foundation's orphan care program.
- 5. Work with local leaders and humanitarian agencies to ensure long-term rehabilitation and educational access for the affected children.

Tumaini Foundation continues to support these children through education sponsorships, counselling, and stable housing. The organization is also advocating for peace, unity, and protection of children's rights in the aftermath of the crisis.
